BIOGRAPHY

Reverend Ray Sydnor is a retired NFL player, community organizer, and ordained minister who specializes in both a youth ministry and sports ministry. He is a loving father who lives by example, influences others to play an active role in encouraging, empowering, and impacting the lives of those in their community.

Ray has been involved in sports for more than 30 years, which includes playing for both the Philadelphia Eagles and Pittsburgh Steelers. Ray's extensive background in athletic excellence can be attributed to his success in football and basketball at Northwestern High School in Baltimore. It was his athletic talents there that earned him scholarships to the University of Wisconsin where he continued to excel in basketball and football. This is what subsequently led to his NFL post with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Ray served for several years as the national spokesman for the Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA). Helping to steer our youth in the right direction is how and where he invests most of his energy, time and talents. His passion to make a difference in the lives of all people is evident in all he does.

Ray has served as youth Pastor at Mount Pleasant Church and Ministries in Baltimore. He also served as youth pastor at Brooklyn Tabernacle in Brooklyn New York, where he led a thriving youth ministry.

In 2002, he founded Mentoring Academics Athletics in Partnership (MAAP), a grass-roots community program based in Baltimore Md. He also founded Shooting 4 Peace, an anti-violence initiative that includes youth, community leaders, and local law enforcement agencies, as well as professional athletes.

A Baltimore native, Ray travels the USA extensively. Wherever the Lord leads him, Rev. Raymond L. Sydnor will prayerfully go!
